

Food For Thought

CHID
490A

This is a seminar designed to allow students to produce substantial research projects within the limited time span of one quarter. To that end, students will examine the topic of food through a variety of lenses—food as sustenance in times of hardship, food as a way to bring family together, food as a source of childhood and childlike amazement, food as an economically and politically charged entity, food as a form of memoir, and food as a career (amongst others). Several assignments will build towards one significant piece of work, which students will present at a CHID thesis presentation in the final week of the quarter.
