

The Craft of Writing

Instructor: Stacey Moran | WINT 2015 | TTh 11:30-1:20 | All Majors

Good writing means different things to different disciplines.

What does it mean to write a good paper for a CHID class? This course - designed especially for CHID majors - introduces students to three forms of academic writing commonly assigned in CHID courses: research paper (critical analysis), personal narrative, and artist statement. Emphasis will be on writing as a process that includes: reading, researching, critical thinking, inventing, drafting, organizing, editing, revising, and self-assessment.
